Understanding and bargaining our new rights

May 2018

Ontario has a host of new employment and labour laws, which were included in Bill 148, Fair Workplaces, Better Jobs Act, that will help bring more fairness to workplaces. Through the Ontario Confederation of University Faculty Associations (OCUFA) and your faculty association, faculty are part of the province-wide Fight for $15 & Fairness movement that won these advances. The new legislation has major implications for campus workers, and several provisions will impact faculty working conditions.

Equal pay (effective on collective agreement expiry date or January 1, 2020)

Employers are required to offer the same rate of pay to part-time, contract, casual, temporary and seasonal employees, who are doing substantially the same work in the same workplaces as their full-time or permanent counterparts. Employers cannot reduce the pay of a full-time or permanent employee to comply with the new law. As long as the work requires substantially the same skills, effort and responsibility and is performed under similar working conditions, the equal pay provisions apply. There are exceptions in cases of seniority and merit, as well as for “any other factor”. But the criteria must be transparent and accessible to all workers.

Employers will use broad exceptions and loopholes in the equal pay language to try to avoid paying workers fairly, including contract faculty. Our work is to develop a strong case for equal pay for contract faculty, and to build power on our campuses to win fairness for contract faculty in bargaining. For questions about advocating for equal pay for contract faculty or to get involved, contact your faculty association at wlufa@wlu.ca.

Vacation pay (effective January 1, 2018)

Workers, including contract faculty, who have been working for the same employer for a period of employment of at least five years are now entitled to six per cent vacation pay (up from four per cent) and three weeks of vacation (up from two weeks). For questions about how this provision affects contract faculty on our campus, contact your faculty association at wlufa@wlu.ca.

New and extended leaves (effective December 3, 2017 or January 1, 2018)

All workers in Ontario are now entitled to several new or extended leave provisions:

- Extended parental leave
- Extended pregnancy leave
- New critical illness leave
- Extended family medical leave
- Improved personal emergency leave
- New child death leave
- New domestic or sexual violence leave

Your faculty association is working hard to determine how these new leaves will interact with our collective agreements. In each case, if all of the relevant leave provisions in a collective agreement taken together are better than the Employment Standards Act, your collective agreement applies. Where a greater benefit is not included in a collective agreement, these new provisions apply. For questions about how these provisions will affect you, contact your faculty association at wlufa@wlu.ca.

It's time to get organized!

The Wilfrid Laurier University Faculty Association has been working in partnership with OCUFA, the Fight for $15 & Fairness and Ontario Federation of Labour to advocate for decent work and are proud to see other major advances, including a $15 minimum wage, fair scheduling rules, and improved rules for joining a union.

We must continue to work with our allies on campus and in our community to raise awareness about these new rights, ensure they are implemented effectively, organize to close gaps in union coverage, and support bargaining campaigns to win higher standards.

Faculty working conditions are students' learning conditions, and we want our students to get the high-quality education they deserve. There has never been a better time to be working to address precarious work and to support good jobs on campus.
